BAILEY'S DRAFT APPEAL REFUSED

Only Roosevelt Or New Evidence Can Keep Senator's Son Out Of Army

RALEIGH, Dec. 6.—(UP)—State Selective Service headquarters is awaiting news from Washington as to whether a son of Senator Josiah W. Bailey of Raleigh must swap his pink papers for the uniform of a private in Uncle Sam's Army.
The son, James H. Pou Bailey, now is a special agent of the FBI.
His number has come up in the draft and his appeal for a deferment has been denied. Only President Roosevelt's presentation of new evidence can keep him out of the service.

Metts then decided to send the record to Washington for personal review by Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hersey, head of Selective Service.

Under national law, either Serehey or Metts can take the case to President Roosevelt, if either believes that an injustice has been done. The president's decision is final. However, Bailey also could reopen his case by presenting new facts—for instance, he might be able to show that in the last few months he has done important work for the FBI.
State Selective Service headquarters said that Senator Bailey had taken no part in the case, and that so far as they knew young Bailey had not tried to avoid the draft, once his appeal was denied. This raises the possibility that the FBI, and not young Bailey, is responsible for the interest shown by Selective service officials in Washington.

Enlargement Of Defense Fund Bill Asked By F.R.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—
President Roosevelt asked the Senate today to add $70,000,000 to the $2,244,041,531 supplemental defense appropriation bill approved by the House.

The request was received by a Senate appropriations subcommittee as it held a Saturday session to speed action on the measure.

Largest of the new items asked by the president was $10,000,000 for the Navy department's Bureau of Yards and Docks for construction of public works that were not detailed.

REFUSE TO HALT SALE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(UP)—
Supreme Court Justice Roberts refused today to halt the proposed sale on Monday of a cargo of lubricating oil which was aboard the Italian steamer Brennero when the vessel was seized recently at the port of New York after alleged sabotage attempts by its crew. Prince Acaente Colonna, the Italian ambassador, petitioned Roberts to stay the sale ordered by the Federal District court for New Jersey.

DOUBLE WEDDING OF WATNA SISTERS
ANNOUNCED HERE

Mr. and Mrs. George Abram of Watna, announce the double wedding of their daughters, Miss Lucy Abram to Samuel H. Wood of Elyton, Tenn., and Miss Addie Abram to Ralph McQuillen of Wilson.

The double ceremony was performed December 1 at Marion, N. C.

in the state and General Federation and because of the excellence of the industrial survey made by clubs in North Carolina under her direction last year.

During her stay in New York, Mrs. Robinson visited the display of the National Congress of Industry and saw there five scrapbooks made by district presidents in North Carolina last year, showing the history and present activities of industries in districts 5, 11, 15 and 16.

Mrs. F. R. Rankin had expected to attend the luncheon, having been invited as president of the state federation, but previous engagements prevented her acceptance.

Mrs. Richard J. Turndine of Denton, Texas, chairman of the Libraries committee of the General Federation's defense program, is forming a "Patriotic Defense Library family" for the purpose of securing a defense library in Federation headquarters in Washington. Every club is asked to donate a book or money for the purchase of one during the period December 1 to 15. Mrs. Dorcas Reid, of the North Carolina Library commission, Raleigh, is chairman of the state federation's Libraries committee and she will receive the donations for this state. Each state has shelves set apart for its donations and not only the state but each club will receive full credit for books contributed.

Book publishers are cooperating and already books have been contributed in all phases of the world crisis. They give a vivid picture of democracy as interpreted by leaders and authors down through the years; they evaluate and contrast the strengths and weaknesses of eastern and western hemisphere governments, and point out ways of increasing appreciation of and strengthening American democracy.

The books are available to two weeks loan to federated club-women, who must give the name of their club when writing headquarters, the address of which is 1724 N. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

According to information from the Safety Division of the Highway Commission, in 1940 there were approximately 46 fatalities in the state resulting from obscured vision; and already in 1941 there have been 50 fatal accidents from the same cause. Signs were not responsible for all of this obscured vision, nor is it possible to say definitely the number of accidents that were the result of the driver's attention being distracted by signs. However, it is expected that there will be fewer accidents with fewer signs along the highways, and clubwomen are well pleased that the ordinance has been so effectively observed to date.

Following the request made by Mrs. Homer H. B. Maak, chairman of the federation's public welfare department, that clubs become more interested in the jail situation in the state, particularly with reference to the jailing of children, a number of inquiries have come to headquarters for information on particular counties. From the Public Welfare department of North Carolina the figures obtained show that for each month between January 1933 and June 1940 more than 100 children with not be because North Carolina clubwomen are ignorant of South America. A review of club programs weekly show that the subject is being studied in the remote mountain villages and in the seacoast hamlets as well as in the towns and cities of the state. Every phase is covered in the programs, and college professors and others who know of South American life are kept busy with speaking engagements before clubs. The next most popular topic of study is the federation's defense program.

The Junior Women's clubs have long had for a special project the work of the North Carolina Children's Home Society, particularly the receiving home in Greensboro. With the hundreds of demands upon them for their time, the young women are not overlooking this work and are now engaged in efforts to raise funds for its support.

In Carthage the Juniors, under the leadership of their president, Miss Grace Blue, are sponsoring two Girl Scout troops. The club is active in Red Cross work and is handling the sale of defense stamps and bonds.

The Sorosis in Wilmington is again holding a weekly baby clinic under the direction of Dr. Gertrude Doonette and Mrs. Ida Holton. Together with the Juniors the women are sending Christmas gifts to the men of the 11th Coast Artillery now at Trinidad.

In New Barn, with Miss Gertrude Carraway as chairman of the defense committee, there is a first-aid class of 46 women and a first-aid group is being organized for civilian defense. The club sponsors weekly dances, a blind center, a nursing school and free lunches at public schools. When the first-aid classes are finished a motor corp will be organized.

Jacksonville keeps its clubhouse open every day of the week with hostesses working full time, serving cookies, tea, fruit, etc. Dances are given six nights of the week.

The Richmond club holds open-house every Saturday night.

The Acme-Deice club at Delco is again sponsoring an empty stock fund and has adopted a fourth grade student as its protégé for the year. The club is particularly active in public welfare work.

As a money-making and social project combined, the Charlotte club is having "Family Night". Supper is served each Thursday evening to club members and their families and they may remain for bridge or other social pastimes.

Mrs. Karl Blahopric is suggesting that stamps and bonds would make excellent Christmas gifts. The little "Postal Savings Plan" booklet, holding one or more stamps, may be wrapped and mailed well before the place of a Christmas card for each child on one's list. At a recent meeting of the Lookville-Spry History club, Mrs. Blahopric, as hostess, presented every member and invited guest with one of the booklets, each containing a stamp and well before the Christmas tide, instead of the usual more elaborate refreshments.

Mrs. Blahopric stuck to her object lesson even though the program consisted of a talk on Nutrition for

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. KRAMER

RE: WILLIAM PATRICK HITLER
INTERNAL SECURITY - G

On January 26, 1942, Mr. Garland Redd Quarles, Superintendent of Schools, Winchester, Virginia, was referred to the writer for an interview. At that time he presented a circular distributed by William B. Peakins, Inc., entertainment management agents, regarding William Patrick Hitler, nephew of Adolf Hitler, who reportedly lectures on an expose of the Nazi intrigues.

Mr. Quarles wished advice as to whether any derogatory information was contained in the files of this Bureau. The policy of the FBI was explained to him in this regard. His main purpose in determining whether any derogatory information was available was due to the fact that William Patrick Hitler had been scheduled for an address to raise funds to buy defense bonds in Winchester, Virginia.

It was suggested to Mr. Quarles since William Patrick Hitler was an alien that he might wish to check with the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which has jurisdiction over aliens. He then commented that he would also call on the British Embassy, in view of the fact that the above captioned individual had resided in England.

The only information contained in the Bureau files with reference to this Hitler has been gleaned from various newspaper reports of his lecturing activities and from circulars forwarded by interested citizens. No action is contemplated with reference to the subject.

Respectfully,

D. A. Flinn

WILLIAM PATRICK HITLER

BORN IN ENGLAND to Hitler's half-brother Alois and an Irish mother, he was educated in English schools and did not meet his celebrated uncle until 1929 at the Nuremberg Congress of the Nazi Party. In 1933 William Patrick Hitler went to live in Germany and during the next six years was under the constant surveillance of Hitler himself and such dignitaries as Rudolf Hess and Ernst Wilhelm Bohle, in charge of all Germans living abroad and director of Fifth Column activities. Jailed during the "blood purge" of 1934, young Hitler was released through the intervention of British diplomatic officials.

He worked in the Opel automobile plant but was prevented from pursuing an engineering and sales career by a Fuhrer who felt his dignity insulted. Young Hitler was frequently called on the Chancellor's carpet and given unmistakable warning against revelation of Hitler family life, and his freedom to seek employment was curbed at every turn. A devout Catholic, he never subscribed to Nazi doctrines and observed with horror the attacks upon his Church. Finally, in 1939, he was told that he must accept German citizenship, but he slipped out of the Third Reich across to England where he met his mother and with her departed for America.

His story of the Nazi regime is unique, for he brings testimony of the true character of Hitler and his jealous rivals. Constantly threatened with Gestapo reprisal for his indiscretion, William Patrick Hitler has chosen to tell the truth of Hitler's background, his strange assortment of actress and young men friends, the cabals which surround Der Fuhrer, the reaction of the German people to the barbarism of the Nazi party machine.

My Dear Mr. Hoover ;

Please pardon the liberty I take in writing however I do so upon the request of our Mayor Dr. Chas. B. Anderson, and in addition to this fact I had the pleasure of meeting you in person at the Kiwanis International Convention held in Washington D.C. several years ago. In addition to this I have visited your building several times with the Arlington County and Alexandria Va. Kiwanis clubs. when we were all taken thru on a private tour.

Now our proposition is simply this we would like to know what you have in your files concerning a man who spoke here last night under the name of William Patrick Hitler.

I am sending you in separate mail the circular card used in advertising the lecture and you will note on this card is booked under the exclusive management of the William B. Peakins, Inc. 500 Fifth Ave. N.Y. and Vista del Arroyo Pasadena Cal.

Enclosed you will also find clipping in this morning paper written by Rosalind Water' who evidently attended the lecture. I also attend the lecture and can to a certain extent verify the enclosed clipping.

The Winchester Kiwanis Club paid him the sum of $ 150.00 cash and the net proceeds will be given our local Red Cross Chapter.

Prof Garland Quarles, Supt. of Handley School made a special trip to the British Embassy in Washington D.C and was told that Mr. Hitler was O.K. and for the sake of our local Kiwanis Club I trust this is correct.

I trust that you will see fit to furnish me the correct information and you can rest assured that everything will be held in strictest confidence

Hitler's Nephew Makes Address At Handley

By ROSALIND KATER

A flair for propaganda and unusually brilliant oratory were cited by William Patrick Hitler as two of the most important factors in the rise to power of his uncle, Adolf Hitler.

Patrick Hitler's address made last night at the Handley auditorium was under the sponsorship of the Winchester Kiwanis Club and benefit of the Winchester Red Cross.

Judge Philip Williams introduced Mr. Hitler, who began his lecture by giving a summary of his family background. He stated that when he was about 3½ years old his father, Alois Hitler, deserted his family.

When he was about 17, he wanted to find out if his father were still alive and found that he was a prosperous merchant. They exchanged letters and later he went to Germany to visit his father.

Mr. Hitler very graphically described his meeting with his Uncle Adolf and the scene of the Nuremberg rally. He spoke of the theatrical setting for Hitler's speech in which he called upon the German people to forget any feelings of inferiority and to realize their superiority.

Under the spell of his oratory and Utopian promises those who swore allegiance to Hitler and National Socialism were ready to forget family, religion and God and to believe in the new religion, Nazism and to look upon a feeling of nothing to live for and nothing to hope for engulfed the German people, Patrick Hitler told his audience, and they looked to his uncle, who promised them bread, existence, and an invincible Germany, a block of steel that would rule the world.

Mr. Hitler declared that during 1933 he felt at first that there might be some hope that the Utopian state promised the German people would not be impossible and that the Jewish pogroms were a phase of savagery of the storm troopers, and that eventually Adolf Hitler would calm down.

But, he declared, that he realized that his uncle had no designs for anything.

the storm troopers, and that eventually Adolf Hitler would calm down.

But, he declared, that he realized that his uncle had no designs for anything but personal power and liked to look upon himself as the greatest man in the world.

In return for the attempts to make Germany strong and put its industry on a sound basis the German people gave to their leader carte blanche.

Although things appeared wonderful on the surface, Mr. Hitler declared that was far from the true state of conditions in Germany, where Naziism attacked evangelical groups, Free Masonry, Rotarians, Boy Scouts, and other such organized orders, and that Germany was cut off from the outside world.

The German people were told the day had come when they were done with believing that Jesus Christ was a Jew; that was a foible of the Catholic Church; that Catholicism and Christianity were the worst drawbacks to the expansion of Germany.

Rather they should behold, according to National Socialism, the simple man in their midst who lived only for the people, a veritable risen Christ.

"Shall we serve God or shall we serve Hitler?" was the challenging question Patrick Hitler asked.

Patrick Hitler spoke of the paragraphs of Hitler's "cabinet," and "Myth of the 20th Century," Rosenberg's vitriolic book attacking Christianity; that Germans were taught to believe their race superior; children told to spy on their parents, and parents told that their children, upon reaching the age of 5 years, belonged to the state.

In 1938, Mr. Hitler said he found more people wanting to get out of Germany than those wanting to enter.

In conclusion, Mr. Hitler stated that "without freedom life is not worth living."

During the question and answer forum following the formal lecture, Mr. Hitler said he believed his uncle to be a pathological case; that he considered Hess one of the sanest, most level-headed of the top ranking men around Hitler; that the German people were cut off from the outside world and that it is punishable by death to listen to foreign broadcasts.

In response to a question why he was not in service with the allied forces, Mr. Hitler answered that he has tried several times to enlist but the Canadian government considers it more pertinent at this time for him to continue with his lectures. He also said he believes there is a rift in the Nazi high command which will eventually become more serious.

It was unofficially estimated that as a result of this lecture the Red Cross Emergency War Relief drive will realize about $300.

Only Hoover

My dear Dr. Anderson:

You recall that you requested me to write the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Washington, relative to William Patrick Hitler, who spoke at the Handley High School Auditorium, February 6th. I wrote Mr. J. Edgar Hoover on February 7th, and enclosed you will find a copy of his letter written me on February 13th, which explains itself.

I suppose the only course left for you to pursue would be to write the Attorney General. I do not want to discourage you, however, if you have as much red tape business to go through with in order to get to the Attorney General's office, as we have had in this Civilian Defense proposition, I fear that perhaps the war may be over by that time and it will do no good to further investigate William Patrick Hitler.

My only thought in the matter was to stop this man from speaking at what I consider a most exorbitant price, $150.00, to other Alkanis Clubs, however, you are familiar with what was said and done at the Handley School and it is now up to your good judgment, and if I can be of further service to you, kindly call on me.

Yours very truly,

Andrew Bell

Secretary

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MEMORANDUM FOR: Hon. J. Edgar Hoover, Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Dear Edgar:

This letter comes from Hitler's nephew who apparently is on a lecture tour of the United States. I thought it might be well to look into the matter as he is now writing the President asking that he be allowed to join the United States Army.

Sincerely,

Edwin M. Watson
